

Press Release

Contact: Dr. Kevin Muriithi, Secretary
Africa Society of Evangelical Theology
asetsecretary@gmail.com

March 5, 2022
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Africa Society of Evangelical Theology holds 12th Conference and Annual General Meeting

Nairobi, Kenya — About 80 scholars, pastors, theologians, and students gathered online on ZOOM, co-hosted by the Africa Nazarene University, for the 12th Africa Society of Evangelical Theology (ASET) Annual General Meeting and Conference, March 4-7, 2022. Professor Afe Adogame (Maxwell M. Upson Professor of Religion and Society, Princeton Theological Seminary) gave the plenary Address on the conference theme, Salvation in African Christianity. Conference attendees from more than 36 denominations, 25 institutions, 18 countries in different continents around the world discussed the theme in sessions covering a variety of topics, with over 30 papers covering systematic theology, biblical studies, philosophy, intercultural studies, leadership studies, ubuntu, historical studies, pastoral theology, and practical theology.

The Annual General Meeting was held on Friday from 4:15 PM discussing matters pertinent to the past year's reports from the different sub-committees, including, Publication & Communications Committee, Programme & Arrangements Committee, Treasurer's Report, Membership Committee, Chairman's Report and Auditor's Report.

The 13th ASET Annual Conference and General Meeting will be held on March 3-4 2023 at Daystar University and will look at the theme of Ecclesiology in African Christianity. The Call for Papers has been forwarded to members and institutions. Deadline for the CFP is 31st July 2022.

The Africa Society of Evangelical Theology \(ASET\) is a community of Evangelicals in Africa engaged in the full spectrum of theological scholarship for the benefit of the Church and society. We do this through encouraging research and providing a forum for disseminating that research among members and to the wider Christian and academic communities, discussing issues facing the African church and society from an evangelical perspective, organizing annual conferences, fostering fellowship and networking among African scholars, theologians and practitioners, providing opportunities for publication through our book series with Langham Publishing and mentoring of early career scholars and researchers.

For information about the society and membership, email society secretary, Dr. Kevin Muriithi at asetsecretary@gmail.com or visit our webpage here.